Night Navigator

Is that bright point of light Mars, our most Earth-like neighbor? Or is it Sirius, the "Dog Star," a blue giant 12 times the size of our sun and likely to have planets of its own? Is that pattern of stars a constellation that we could use to tell our direction, like the Big Dipper? Or is it one of the famous "birth" signs of the zodiac, like Gemini, Scorpio, or Aquarius?

Until now, there was no easy way to find these objects. At last you—along with your family and friends—can know the night sky. You can find and show others the objects you've heard and read about. Now you can even visualize how the ancient Greeks connected the stars to "see" their legendary heroes in the night sky!

- Automatically shows you where to look to find the constellation, star, or planet you want to see!
- Plus! Quickly identifies constellations and bright stars you notice on your own.
- Labels the night sky on color-keyed, illuminated sky charts!
- Makes it easy to show your family and friends Orion the Hunter, Pegasus the Winged Horse, and 37 other constellations—even their zodiac signs!

Breakthrough electronics! You'll find and identify night-sky objects—in just seconds!

You can know where the constellations, individual stars, and even the planets are—instead of just guessing in the dark! Thanks to modern micro-chip technology, observing the night sky has never been more fun or more educational!

Night Navigator is a unique, patent-protected scientific breakthrough that automatically finds what you want to see in the night sky. It also identifies what you discover on your own.

All of us have looked up into the star-filled skies and wished we could sort it out—find and recognize the constellations, stars, and planets.
